DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is in response to applicant's communication filed on 2/27/04 wherein, claims 1-20 are currently pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
 2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
 3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
 4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.
2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Anecki et al. (PG Pub. 2006/0010377) (Hereinafter referred to as Anecki).
- Anecki discloses a method for processing legal document requests over a network connecting a to a plurality of responders, the method comprising:

providing a legal document database to store a plurality of requests (Anecki fig. 2, item 1110); receiving at the document request database a document (Anecki fig. 2, item 1140); sending a notification by way of e-mail (Anecki fig. 2, item 1170); and transmitting data from the document request database to the requestor (Anecki fig. 8, item 1744).

the document database sends another notification seeking the other document wherein the other notification is sent to another responder (Anecki fig. 2, item 1192).

receiving at least one response to the notification from the responder (Anecki fig. 2, item 1192).

if the at least one response is a request for additional information: notifying the requestor about the request for additional information; receiving additional information from the requestor; and notifying the responder about the additional information (Anecki [0041])

the document request database is a distributed database comprising one or more database servers distributed over one or more networks (Anecki fig. 3b).

Anecki does not explicitly disclose processing specifically waivers or a second request and processing a second document. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to interchange the interactive system and method of automating the generation of legal documents with a waiver and the ability to process multiple requests. As one skilled in the art would have recognized, a waiver is simply an express statement, which intentionally and voluntarily gives up something, such as a right. In this case, the applicant's invention waives the failed test and authorizes shipment of a device that otherwise functions properly under normal operating conditions. The system is voluntarily bypassing the device testing performed by the Automated Test Equipment (ATE), and creating a waiver in order for the device to be shipped. Moreover, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to process multiple legal documents upon request.

Art Unit: 3629
